Synopsis Books:

Cities tend to be glamorized by movies and Instagram pictures, but the truth is its harder to live in urban areas than expected. Stepping out onto the urine-soaked streets of San Francisco can be overwhelming, especially if youre a slightly overweight, single, small-town girl.

In order to cover the cost of over-priced city rent, twenty-three-year-old Mallory Bates is forced to do the responsible thing and ask a complete stranger to move in with her. Kaden Covington, her supposed Southern belle roommate, turns out to be a he rather than the she Mallory expected. Mallory has always been lacking in the boyfriend department, so shes nave to the signs of a budding relationship with Kaden until its too late to turn off the emotions.

On top of an unconventional living situation, Mallorys first client at her PR firm, Rachel Hines, is a demanding nightmare. Follow Mallory's journey as she navigates through the tough "firsts" as an adult.
