Synopsis Books:

'The twenty-seven autobiographies are in three sections, "The Labouring Classes" (the most vivid), "Domestic Servants" (not all like Upstairs Downstairs) and "Skilled Workers" (the most self-assured)... Without exception they are vivid, arresting and thoroughly readable.'

-- The Times Educational Supplement

'An anonymous navvy in 1830 writes of his drinking and tramping; a farm labourer remembers his amusement at the coming of machines around 1870; Lucy Luck, a straw-plait worker, remembers her days in the union workhouse and her fight for some sort of dignity in marriage... the writers speak for themselves'
